Your apartment The secret to having a party in your home is structure. Keep it simple, plan engaging activities, and everyone will go home happy.

Your favorite local restaurant Don't let the fact that they're not advertising for private parties deter you. Just ask and chances are they'll be happy to help. Reserve a table or two, pay for the food, and leave a nice tip. It's a win-win: they get your business and you save some money.

Your child's school Many elementary schools will let you have a short class party for your child. No need to worry about invitations, renting space, etc. PLUS your child gets to celebrate with the entire class! Ask for permission and start planning at least 6 weeks in advance. Many schools are also willing to rent the cafeteria, gymnasium, etc.
